

Re: Mr. Fuller, Q re your background in science

Wednesday, January 13, 2010 4:44 PM

From:  "Tom Fuller"

To: "Anna Haynes"

Dear Ms. Haynes,

It was in the second food fight column:

Tom Fuller says:

Lots'o comments. Good morning, all.

Vic (and any others from Tobis' site), I may have unintentionally misled you while talking about my academic background. I said my background was similar to Tobis, but I should have been clearer that I certainly did not pursue it as far as he did. I started in electronics and physics, courtesy of the U.S. Navy, and continued with quantum mechanics for cryptography, also courtesty of the U.S.N. After leaving the Navy I used the G.I. Bill to double major in Journalism and Anthropology. Like Tobis, I meandered a bit after that, working a bit in journalism and a bit in market research. Although I studied environmental sciences as part of anthropology, I am not a scientist and I did not take any climate science courses. I hope that's clear. Now, since you seem to feel that 'when danger reared his ugly head, he bravely turned his tail and fled,' let me tell you that, like Tobis, you snarked most after I left. Scratch bully, find coward.

Sincerely

Tom Fuller