Re: Greenpeace and the International Whaling Commission

During the interview you did with me on January 12 I stated that while Greenpeace had acted within the law in all matters related to the International Whaling Commission they may have helped with travel expenses for some delegates to the Commission.

This statement was in error in that it was a strict policy in Greenpeace that no Greenpeace funds were used for any expenses of government representatives to attend the International Whaling Commission. Greenpeace did encourage other parties to support the involvement of some states in the Commission and this is the basis for the error in the manner in which I responded to your question.

Thank you for the opportunity to clarify this point.
